

THE CHOICES HE'S MADE.
THE BATTLES HE'S WAGED.

“Senator Obama has broad appeal to Independents and Republicans and has brought new voters to the Democratic Party. He is making our Party more representative of this nation. He is redesigning the contours of American politics.

Barack Obama has inspired me, and I encourage my fellow Hoosiers to do everything they can to make sure that he is our next President.”

FMR CONGRESSMAN LEE HAMILTON

Co-Chair of the 9/11 Commission and the Iraq Study Group

Barack Obama was raised by a single mom and his grandparents, and worked his way through college with loans and part-time jobs. After graduating, he passed up Wall Street jobs to work with communities devastated by steel plant closings. He went on to law school, then returned to Chicago to run a voter registration drive, teach Constitutional law and win a seat in the Illinois Senate.

Obama brought Republicans and Democrats together to get things done – taking on tough issues in the Illinois Senate like moving people from welfare to work and cutting taxes for those who need help making ends meet.

In the U.S. Senate, he’s worked to make America safer. On the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he teamed with Republican Dick Lugar to pass a new law to keep nuclear weapons out of the hands of terrorists.

And he’s changing Washington by refusing to take money from federal lobbyists or political action committees for his campaign. He has proven that you can run for president with millions of contributions of less than $100 instead of just relying on Washington special interests.

Today, Barack and his wife Michelle are raising their daughters with the same values Barack learned from his family: accountability and self-reliance, love of country, and treating your neighbor as you’d like to be treated.
